

SIXTY-FIVE WEDS EIGHTEEN.

Ardent But Aged James Brace Married to Vivacious Edith Dymond.

SPECIAL TO THE INQUIRER.

PITTSTON, April 5.—James Brace, a prosperous farmer at Dallas borough, aged 65, this week succeeded in impressing Miss Edith Dymond, the pretty 18-year-old daughter of a neighbor, with his loveliness and isolation, and she pitying him, consented to become his wife.

Filled with the joy of an ardent lover, the aged suitor at once started out to walk to the county seat, a distance of fifteen miles, to secure the marriage license. At the Register's office he encountered a snag. The bride-elect was a minor and the consent of her parents must be obtained before the license could be granted.

Back to his rural home he went, and yesterday the triumphant groom-elect presented the parents' consent and secured the license. Today the couple were happily wedded.
